

COVID-19 and Beyond: Building Resilience

COVID-19 in Nigeria

- 🦠 In Nigeria, the number of COVID-19 cases continues to rise, and the unprecedented impact has shown the vulnerability of our health system
- 🦠 Nigeria already has a critical shortage of health professionals and sadly many health workers who are our first line of defense serving on the front lines of the COVID-19 fight have been affected by the virus
- 🦠 We must protect and support our health workers to safely and effectively do their jobs

COUNTRY	DOCTOR TO PATIENT RATIO
Nigeria	3.81 doctors per 10,000 people
India	8.57 doctors per 10,000 people
Canada	26.1 doctors per 10,000 people
France	32.7 doctors per 10,000 people

Building a Resilient Health System

To tackle current and future health threats, we must build a stronger and more resilient health system.

This requires a nationwide workforce of trusted, confident, expert health professionals who can stop the next health threat wherever and whenever it comes - and protect themselves in the process

Investing in our Human Capacity

Infection Prevention and Control (IPC) is a multi-disciplinary approach to identifying and stopping the spread of infectious diseases but Nigeria's health care system has a critical IPC gap

We need to fill this gap by building and sustaining the capacity of our health workers to rapidly and safely respond to outbreaks

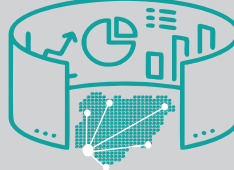

Thus, DRASA plans to establish Nigeria's first-ever IPC Simulation Training Center to train 10,000+ health professionals each year who will be prepared, equipped, and ready to protect our public health

Our Solution: Simulation Training

PHASE 1: Establish in Lagos

- 3 day in-depth course
- 1 day topical courses
- Online training programs
- On-site training and facility assessments

PHASE 2: Expand to other states

PHASE 3 : Expand to other industries

Why Simulation?

It is hard to train someone for a time of emergency

Simulation – which originated in the aviation industry – is a safe, hands-on training method which tests and builds a person's capacity to respond to danger, challenges, and emergencies
